The Market

With around 32 million people, Uzbekistan is the mostly populated country in Central Asia. Therefore, providing a continuous food security to its population through the sustainable development of agriculture remains a strategically important issue for Uzbekistan's government. Currently, agriculture is one of the fastest growing sectors of economy and the third largest contributor to its GDP (17.6% in 2016). Due to the climatic conditions, as much as 85% of Uzbekistan's agricultural land is irrigated. The most important crops are cotton and wheat, and significant other products include fruits (apples, apricots, peaches and berries), vegetables (cucumbers, tomatoes and potatoes), milk, silk and livestock. The production of raw cotton, a traditionally principal agricultural product, has been substantially reduced, which freed up around 170,500 hectares of land. This land will primarily be used to sow potato and other vegetables, forage crops for feed production as well as horticulture crops.

Currently Uzbekistan produces around 16 million tons of fruits and vegetables, the volume of which is expected to increase to 5 million tons by 2030. Nevertheless, only 15% of fruits and vegetables is processed in Uzbekistan, which entails a high degree of wastage and price fluctuations during on- and off-seasons. Furthermore, the capacity of refrigerated warehouses, which is estimated to be around 800,000 tons, needs to be increased because it is enough to only store 5% of the national harvest. The demand for modern machinery, processing equipment and cooling technologies is, therefore, growing as the government aims to increase the efficiency of agricultural products.

Animal husbandry encompasses 40% of the total output of agriculture. During the last five years, livestock has increased by 21% including cattle by 7%, sheep and goats by 20% and poultry 1.5 times. Today, almost 95% of livestock (or 10 million) is brought up in private smallholding and commercial farms. They produce more than 90% of the country's meat, 95.7% of milk and 54.8% of eggs. The number of breeding farms has exceeded 400, and they currently raise 99,200 heads of livestock.

Uzbekistan opens a free conversion of foreign currency! The limitation of currency has been the biggest obstacle in trading with Uzbekistan. Now, in accordance with the Decree of the President of Uzbekistan, private individuals and businesses are free to buy and sell a foreign currency for international operations (import of goods and services, payment of dividends, credit payments etc.). This opens up enormous opportunities to develop trade with Uzbekistan.

Visa-free regime. Citizens of 27 countries, including Germany and France (for the latter is an age limit of 55 years) should therefore be able to enter the country without a prior visa approval from 1st January 2021. The same applies to the simplification of the visa procedure and the introduction of E-visas. In addition, the Uzbek government remains free to adapt the list of states to which the visa-free regime applies with regard to bilateral relations, the development of the global tourism market and regional and global security.
